AASHTO Committee Launches Virtual COVID-19 Panels on April 8, 2020

The American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials Committee on Transportation System Security and Resilience (CTSSR) is sponsoring a series of “virtual panel discussions” to help state department of transportation leaders stay up-to-date on the latest news regarding the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic.

The panels will feature updates from the Federal Highway Administration, Transportation Security Administration, and Department of Homeland Security regarding the latest transportation implications of the COVID-19 outbreak. State DOT leaders will also get updates from other state and local transportation agencies from across the country, with an opportunity for open discussion.

The virtual panel series will be hosted weekly for the month of April, commencing Wednesday, April 8, at 3 p.m. eastern time. A survey of DOT needs or areas of interest regarding COVID-19 response and recovery will be launched at the April 8 session. Feedback collected will be used to inform subsequent sessions and additional technical assistance in response to the immediate and near-term response needs identified by state and local transportation agencies.

Please register for each session individually that you wish to attend:
